14th December 2009

Dear Colleague,

Deposit of the documents related to the "Assessment of whether and how collective defined contribution schemes might operate in the UK" in the libraries of House of Commons and House of Lords.

On 11 December 2008 the Government published its response to the consultation paper on risk sharing in occupational pensions. It notably committed to undertake further work on a potential new approach, collective defined contribution schemes.

The Department for Works and Pensions has published an assessment of whether and how collective defined contribution schemes might operate in the UK on 15 December 2009.

The attached documents should now be placed in the House of Commons and House of Lords libraries.

*Kind regards
Angela*
