7 June 2019

Dear Emma

First, I would to thank you for securing the debate on Grenfell Tower on 6 June 2019.

During what I thought was a valuable and important debate on the aftermath and legacy of the Grenfell Tower tragedy yesterday I gave a number of updates on progress and actions by the government.

I am writing to provide further clarity on one particular aspect where my use of language was possibly unclear.

Members asked for an update on ACM remediation progress and as at the end of April, in the social sector 87% of the 158 buildings have work completed or underway, with plans or commitments in place for the remaining 13%.

Across all sectors, work is complete or underway on 47% of buildings with plans or commitments in place to remediate a further 43%.

I will place a copy of this letter in the House of Commons Library and I have also written to John Healey.
