Personally I believe that smaller countries like Belgium, Switzerland, Holland, Lichtenstein and others in the world work better in terms of a democracy, culturally and economically too. So I’m in favour of Scotland splitting up from England and even Wales and Ireland too. Maybe we could compose a federal type of get together for the purposes of defence and trade. Large organisations seem to be clumsy by their nature and slow to react to the vicissitudes of life on earth. I feel that England has played it’s last role in it’s empire building ethos and it’s about time we let go of the bullying reins of power over our neighbours and set aside our differences and renew our relationships on a more wholesome and creative basis of justice and friendship.
