Sex workers have been saying for years now that decriminalization of their profession, rather than further criminalization, is what will actually help protect them from violence and exploitation. It is far past time to make a distinction between actual human trafficking and the consensual sex between adults that sex workers engage in. Please listen to what sex workers themselves want and need for their safety.