The law on abortion in Northern Ireland, where I live, should not be changed. Personally I believe that human life begins at conception and to intentionally terminate life at any stage is wrong.

An estimated 100,000 lives have been saved in NI (babies saved from being aborted) since the 1967 Abortion Act was introduced in GB. Although changes to the law (as in the Irish Republic) would be worded so as to make it sound that it is the woman’s choice (whether to murder her unborn child), in fact as recenyl as 2016, 98% of abortions in GB were carried out for social reasons.

Finally, Westminster should not set out to bypass the will of our elected representatives in this matter.
