My name is Martin Brown and I live and work in Northern Ireland and I understand that campaigners are seeking to impose abortion laws in our Country.

I strongly object to these views on the basis that our own laws here in Northern Ireland should be respected and not bypassed, this was made clear in February 2016 by our elected representatives.

Our laws have protected and continue to protect unborn children who are the most vulnerable in our society although they have no voice of their own. I am proud of the fact that over 100,000 lives have been saved because of our laws and remain committed to helping to give a voice to these unborn children who are in some people’s eyes not even a life to be considered and can be terminated.
