1) DEVOLUTION
I believe it is only fair and right that politicians resident in N Ireland decide on this vitally important issue of abortion, not those in some other political body in GB.

2) DISTINCTIVE LAW AND CULTURE
There are many (reasonably estimated to be around 100,000) people alive today in N Ireland because of our (rightly) strict abortion laws. It is a great moral tragedy that so many little children in the womb are killed in GB simply because of the personal inconvenience it may bring to the lifestyle of the mother and which is effectively encouraged by the liberal abortion laws in GB.

3) HUMAN RIGHTS & EQUALITY
It is perverse that those pushing an Equality agenda think that it brings respect and dignity to life in a nation when it allows women to kill an unborn defenseless child. Is it any wonder we have so much lawlessness and lack of respect for authority in our society when we help foster such attitudes by our laws?

4) PERSONAL STORIES
I have a daughter who is an obstetrician. In all of her years in working as an obstetrician and gynecologist, only once has she had to abort a child in the womb because of the risk to the life of the mother and this decision was certainly not made lightly. It is an awesome thing to terminate the life of another person.
