1) DEVOLUTION
In Northern Ireland were a little different than our cousin's on the 'mainland'. That's why we have the ability to set some of our laws. We're delighted that folk care about our laws, but we have a no representation on the WEC. We would ask you consider our right to set these laws and indeed how important they are to us as a people.

2) DISTINCTIVE LAW AND CULTURE
I know for the most part we move together as a United Kingdom but in this issue we see things very differently. We agree with our English, Scottish and Welsh cousin's in the value of a mother's life but we also agree to the huge value of an unborn child's life. I know this is not seen as very modern, but it's something we hold dearly and cannot separate from ourselves anymore than we could remove our hearts.
