the logo

The logo is a key element of the DCMS brand.

The DCMS logo has been strengthened, with the additional element of the full name, to enhance awareness and create better communication.

It is made up of two elements, the box symbol and the name. To maximise their impact, they have a fixed relationship that must remain consistent.

The logo must be seen on everything we do, from publications to stationery to exhibitions. It must always be applied consistently, in the DCMS colour palette and in the top left hand corner of an application (unless otherwise stated).

It should not be redrawn, digitally manipulated or altered. The logo must always be reproduced from a master reference. This is available in tiff, eps and jpeg format.

Tiff: all professionally printed applications.

Eps: large format ie exhibitions.

Jpeg: Microsoft programmes.

department for culture, media and sport

the logo

minimum size

exclusion zone

The DCMS logo must always be consistently reproduced and clearly visible. Therefore a minimum size has been established for the logo. The size is 10mm measured across the width of the DCMS box symbol.

There is no maximum size. The logo is available in a larger file size for large reproduction formats, ie exhibitions.

The DCMS logo is also protected by an exclusion zone. this will ensure the logo has maximum impact and visibility on all communications.

The exclusion zone is calculated by using two thirds, of the height of the box, as illustrated. Please observe this rule and ensure that no other graphic elements (such as text or imagery) intrude into the zone.

colour

To represent the diversity of our work we use a vibrant palette of ten colours. The palette should be used for all communications and in rotation to exploit the full range and create maximum impact. No alternative colours are permitted.

The colours have been chosen to complement each other and can be combined (see page 8 for details).

It is vital the colours are produced accurately across all communications. Always match the Pantone reference or CMYK percentages indicated. The RGB reference is for on-screen usage only.

The standards for the PANTONE® Colours are shown in the current edition of the PANTONE® Color Formula Guide. The PANTONE® MATCHING SYSTEM is a worldwide printing, publishing and packaging colour language for the selection, marketing and control of colour. PANTONE® is a registered trademark of Pantone, Inc.

the logo

colour variants

The logo can appear in any of the DCMS colours on a white background or reversed white out of the colour palette. Where colour reproduction is limited it can also appear in black on a white background or reversed white out of black.

No alternative colours or combinations are permitted. See page 6 for colour specifications.

colour combinations

The DCMS colour palette has been designed to work independently or in various complementary combinations, as shown.

This is particularly effective when resources are limited and only two colour printing is available, such as for level 2 publications.

typeface

primary

Bliss

Distinctive and powerful typography reinforces the DCMS personality and adds impact to our communications.

Bliss is our primary typeface. It was chosen for its legibility, versatility and availability. The Bliss family includes a variety of weights, offering extensive design flexibility. Bliss should be used for all communications, wherever possible.

Clarendon is our supporting typeface and should be used with discretion to provide emphasis on the page. Arial is our substitute typeface, this is only used on our website and for PowerPoint presentations.

No other typefaces are permitted.

The minimum point size for body copy is 11pt set on 13pt leading.

For detailed typographic specifications please see the publications section of the guidelines on page 17.

Bliss is available from Jeremy Tankard Typography www.typography.net

Bliss

Our primary typeface is Bliss. The sans serif was chosen for the accessibility, simplicity, legibility and distinctive character of the design. Bliss has a natural humanist feel and flow. The typeface family includes many different weights, from extra light to heavy. Bliss has good visibility on the page and should be used for all communications. It offers excellent design flexibility and character.

typeface supporting Clarendon

Clarendon is our supporting typeface and should be used with discretion to provide emphasis on the page. It has been chosen to compliment Bliss and provide additional typographic impact.

It should be used minimally to highlight short paragraphs, the mission statement, headings, quotes etc. Clarendon should never be used for large areas of body copy.

Copy is generally set in upper and lowercase, ranged left, ragged right. For detailed typographic specifications please see the publications section of the guidelines on page 17.

Clarendon is available from www.linotype.com

Clarendon

Our secondary typeface is Clarendon. The slab serif typeface was chosen for its clear, objective, timeless forms and contemporary feel. In small point sizes Clarendon is still a legible font and in larger print, its individual style attracts attention and creates impact.

strapline

The DCMS strapline is a summary of our mission statement. It is designed to raise our profile and improve communication with our diverse audiences.

The strapline box device provides a visual connection with our logo and enables it to be legible on any background.

It appears on the front cover of every publication and in a prominent position on all other materials. The strapline device is designed to interact with the individual design of each application and create a visual balance with the logo. A set of recommended positions are shown on the following page. The strapline appears in a set position on level 2 publications. Please see page 37 for detailed specifications.

There are two versions of the strapline:

Strapline box defined with a keyline

This is only used on a white background. The white strapline and white text version of this can also be used on any background, provided there is good legibility and reproduction.

Solid strapline box, no keyline

This is used on white, solid colour and image backgrounds.

It can appear in any of the colour combinations shown, (and white). The strapline must be reproduced from a master file and is available in eps or jpeg format.

In exceptional circumstances, where space is restricted, the strapline can appear without the box. It must always be typeset in lowercase Bliss Regular. The design must be approved by the Promotions and Publicity Unit.

Contact numbers: 0207 211 6051, 0207 211 6048, 0207 211 6356 or 0207 211 6509 strapline box defined by keyline – white backgrounds only solid strapline box – white, solid colour and image backgrounds only

strapline positioning

The recommended position for the strapline on level 2 publications is the bottom right hand corner of the page. This creates a visual balance with the logo.

On level 1 publications greater design flexibility is permitted and the position can be determined by the other elements on the page.

The strapline can move vertically along the right hand edge of the design area.

The strapline box should never be positioned in close proximity or visually overpower the DCMS logo.

mission statement

Our mission statement sets out our aims and objectives.

The statement appears prominently on the inside front cover (or first page) of every publication we produce and wherever possible on all other materials.

Level 1 publications and all other materials can customise the style of the mission statement to complement the individual design. The mission statement always appears in Bliss or Clarendon.

On all level 2 publications the mission statement is typeset in a consistent size and position. Please see page 39 for detailed specifications.

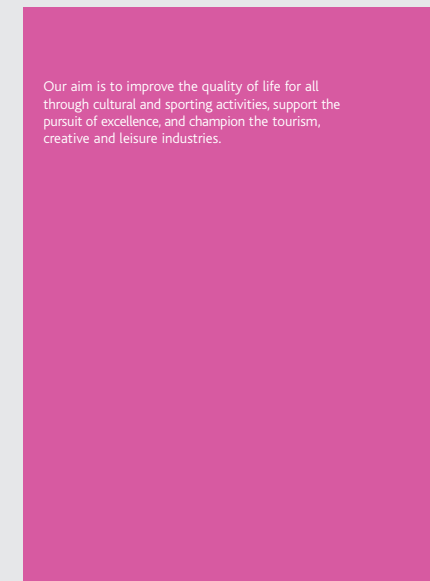

On self-cover documents and DL leaflet, where space is restricted, the mission statement can appear on the back cover. It should appear at the top of the page ranged left or at the base of the page ranged right. Please see page 26 for specifications.

Our aim is to improve the quality of life for all through cultural and sporting activities, support the pursuit of excellence, and champion the tourism, creative and leisure industries.

contact information

DCMS contact details should appear on the outer back cover of every publication. The contact details must always feature the logo, address and website. They appear in a consistent size and position on every publication.

The logo and contact details can appear in any of the DCMS colours or white reversed out of a colour background. The logo must always appear in the same colour as the address and website

co-branding

Independent and partnership organisations that are working with the DCMS require a joint branding. This works on two different levels of branding hierarchy.

Joint ventures (50:50 relationship)

This is when a partnership organisation is working alongside the DCMS in a joint initiative. The partnership logo should have a similar hierarchy and status as the DCMS logo. The other organisation's guidelines should also be consulted.

On front covers the partnership logo can appear in white, black or its own colour, provided this complements the design and print specification. It should be placed at the base of the page, ranged left.

Accreditation (80:20 relationship)

This is when the DCMS is the lead organisation and the partnership organisation is endorsing the initiative. The partnership logo can appear in white, black or its own colour, provided this complements the design and print specification. It should only appear on the outer back cover, in a similar size relationship to the DCMS logo.

Joint venture co-branding

Accreditation co-branding (back cover)

DCMS accreditation

The DCMS is often involved at an accreditation, consultant or supporting level on other organisation's initiatives. The DCMS logo should always appear in order to highlight our role in these initiatives and to raise our profile and public awareness.

Other organisation materials (20:80 relationship)

When the DCMS is endorsing another organisation's initiative the DCMS logo should have a strong visual presence on the page. The preferred placement is on the front cover. The visual relationship between both logos should be balanced. The alternative preferred position is on the outer back cover.

The DCMS logo can appear in white, a colour from the palette or black. The DCMS logo must always be consistently reproduced and clearly visible. The minimum size and minimum clearance guidance must be followed.

The minimum size is 10mm measured across the width of the DCMS box symbol. The logo exclusion zone is calculated by using two thirds, of the height of the box, as illustrated.

publications

Publications are one of our most visible communication tools. They promote the work of the DCMS and provide a vital link with our audiences. DCMS publications are divided into two levels. Detailed design specifications for each level are illustrated on the following pages.

Level 1

Promotional publications

These are commissioned by the Promotions and Publicity Unit, working in conjunction with a design agency. They are bespoke publications and are permitted a high level of design flexibility. Level 1 publications can be produced in alternative, non-standard sizes if this is appropriate to the design concept.

Level 2

Standard publications

These are commissioned by the Promotions and Publicity Unit, working in conjunction with typesetters. Level 2 publications are economical single or two colour publications, designed to a set grid structure. They are always produced in standard sizes, either A4 or A5 portrait.

All publications should be printed on recycled or environmentally friendly, accredited paper stock.

publications level 1

Level 1 publications are allowed a degree of creative freedom, they can use photography, illustration and typography to create a dynamic, inspirational design. Key elements of the brand must be consistently applied:

cover

- Logo – consistent size and position
- Strapline box – consistent size
- Title set in Bliss or Clarendon

inside front cover (or initial pages)

- Mission statement – customised

inside back cover

- DCMS imprint – consistent size and position

outer back cover

- DCMS logo, address and website – consistent size and position

publications

level 1

A4 covers

Level 1 publication covers can use any of the DCMS colours. They are generally printed in 4 colour.

The logo must always be consistently sized and positioned on the page, as shown.

The strapline box position is dictated by the cover design. It is designed to interact with the elements on the page. The strapline box can be a single or two colour combination.

Headings must be well written, engaging, informative and concise. Avoid writing long headings that lack impact.

inside spreads

Distinctive and powerful typography reinforces the DCMS personality and adds impact to our communications. Level 1 publication text spreads should fully exploit the DCMS colour palette and use photography or illustration to add emphasis and highlight key information.

Level 1 publications use Bliss and Clarendon. The Bliss family includes a variety of weights, offering extensive design flexibility. Clarendon is our supporting typeface and should be used with discretion to provide emphasis on the page. It should be used minimally to highlight short paragraphs, the mission statement, headings, quotes etc.

Typography should be strong, distinctive and clear. All text spreads should be well structured and the different typeface weights used to provide clear navigation on the page. Headings have no fixed size. The minimum point size for body copy is 11pt set on 13pt leading. All body copy must be set in Bliss. No other typefaces are permitted. Copy is set in upper and lowercase, however capitals can be used for small areas of copy.

Copy must be well written, engaging, informative and concise. Avoid writing long headings that lack impact. Well crafted copy and clear, effective, modern design allows us to engage with our audiences.

Standard letter and word spacing must always be used. Type must not be condensed or expanded using computer software. Hyphenation should be turned off. 'Widows' and 'orphans' within text should be avoided (wherever possible), either by tracking or kerning (to a maximum of -3) and copy-editing.

1		08			Department for Culture, Media and Sport Document title National Sustainable Tourism Indicators
44					Main heading
16					The Government set out their strategy for developing and promoting a sustainable approach to tourism in Tomorrow's Tourism (DCMS 1999). This promoted adopting of sustainable development principals based on Agenda 21 in all tourism strategies, whether at national, regional or local level together with the need to develop a series of national statistical indicators to help measure progress in achieving sustainable tourism.
					The former English Tourist Council (ETC) published a sustainable strategy Time for Action in 2001 in response to the challenges set down in Tomorrows Tourism and the first set of indicators National Sustainable Tourism Indicators.
					<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Protect and enhance the natural environment and destinations;</li> <li>• Support local communities and culture;</li> <li>• Benefit the local economies of destinations.</li> </ul>
					Responsibility for developing the ETC's sustainable tourism indicators passed to DCMS in 2003 with the expectation of a further reporting cycle.
					Level two heading
					It has become increasingly evident to us as we have been collecting data for these indicators that some are already being superseded by more sophisticated thinking, especially at regional level, that data no longer exists, or the basis of measurement has changed so that comparison of the data over time is not possible. We therefore need to look again at the indicators developed by the ETC to ensure that they remain relevant, that presentation of the data continues to provide a true snapshot of sustainable tourism in England, and if new indicators need to be developed to reflect current sustainable tourism priorities and concerns.
					Level three heading
					The work programme outlined by the Tourism Reform Implementation Group (TRIG) which was set up in 2004 to oversee the programme of work set out in Tomorrow's Tourism Today (DCMS 2004), will give us the opportunity to revise the indicators. One of the key findings of the TRIG sub-group on sustainability was that sustainability work should be at the centre of tourism strategy at all levels and that it should be informed at operation level by an improved and web-based Destination Managers Handbook which will provide all the tools managers need for implementing a sustainable approach to tourism.

images

Photography is a powerful and dynamic tool. It can communicate the diversity, energy and personality of what we do. A great photo, used well, can tell a story far better than words.

Photography should convey emotions and atmosphere. It should encapsulate ideas about growth, innovation, creativity and achievement. Look beyond the straightforward and typical to find a more inspirational perspective. Consider detail or unusual angles to create effective communication and engage the audience.

Images can be reproduced in full colour, duotone or black and white.

Only use images that are relevant and add value. Ensure the content does not offend or alienate. Avoid clichés, racial and gender stereotyping. Images must be print quality, 300dpi.

accessible pdf files

1. Start with an accessible document.

The easiest way to create an accessible PDF document is to start with an accessible text document. Make sure your Word document is formatted correctly with headers, image tags etc.

To create accessible PDF documents you must have a full copy of Adobe Acrobat Professional version 6+.

2. Open the PDF document in Adobe Acrobat:

(a) make sure the document is tagged. Go to: Advanced > Accessibility > Add tags to document (this may have already been done in another application – if so, click OK).

(b) Complete the Metadata information. Go to: File > Document Properties. Under the Descriptions tab. Enter a title, author and complete other fields as necessary. (The author should be DCMS rather than an individual if the document is going outside DCMS). Under Advanced tab. Set the language to English.

(c) Set the tab order. Click the pages tag. Select all pages of the document. Right click and select Open Page Properties. Under tab order select the option for 'use document structure'.

(d) Then do a full check for accessibility. Go to: Advanced > Accessibility > Full Check. Select 'Start Checking'. This will show any accessibility problems with the document. Look out for problems with language, eg abbreviations or figures (images) without alt tags.

3. Accessibility fixes:

Add alt tags to images. Select View > Navigation Tabs > Tags. Locate figure tags within the structure tree and select Options > Properties. Then complete the description in Alternate Text field.

It can be helpful to keep the Highlight Content function switched on in Options, then you can see the image highlighted in the document.

Then, run the Full Check again to ensure problems are fixed. And Save your document.

4. Use bookmarks

If your document is quite long, eg over 8 pages consider using bookmarks. With the bookmark tab open. Go to the page you want to jump to. Select Options > New bookmark. Name the bookmark. Continue inserting useful bookmarks through the document and delete any that aren't useful. When you are finished select Options > Wrap Long Bookmarks. Go to File > Document Properties and select Initial View. Finally in the Documents Options panel, under Show select Bookmarks Panel and Page

5. Optimise for the web

Finally you can reduce the size of your document. There are two ways to do this.

(1) File > Save As. Save the document with the same name to overwrite the original with your changes. This is the most efficient method.

(2) File > Reduce File Size. Choose the option for 'Acrobat 5 or later' This method delivers the highest compression. If you use this method always save the file as a different document to check that the quality has not been unacceptably degraded. If it has return to your original document and use the Save As method.

PowerPoint charts and tables

Chart slides and tables can be used to deliver complex information in a simplified manner.

Select the most appropriate chart or table for the information you need to deliver. Inappropriate and complicated information graphics can lead to confusion and misunderstanding. Colours and tints from the DCMS colour palette can be used to aid legibility and understanding. The recommended minimum copy size for chart information is 11 point.

PowerPoint photography

Photographs should appear in full colour. The style and content of photographs should reflect the diverse work of the Department and be vibrant, inspirational and engaging.

Only use images that are relevant and add value. Ensure image content does not offend, patronise or alienate. Avoid clichés, racial and gender stereotyping. Clip-art should be avoided.

Images can be used full bleed (full page), provided the copy is legible. The examples below illustrate how text and images can work together.

Images can be sourced from the DCMS image library. Alternative images must not be used without prior permission from the provider.

website

The website is a vital tool for communicating with the Department's stakeholders and audiences. It is the 24-hour window in to DCMS and primary vehicle for promoting the work that we do.

Our homepage divides into broad communication themes to enable immediate access to our key initiatives and successes. These themed areas facilitate greater understanding about what DCMS does, and how and where we add value by "improving the quality of life for all".

The website utilises the core elements of the DCMS brand. The colours are used throughout the site to create interest. The homepage design echoes the Department's logo with its creative use of squares for the broad communication areas. The site also reflects the look and feel achieved by DCMS offline publications using strong and vibrant images to convey a sense of dynamism without making the site heavy on the eye.

All DCMS campaign websites or micro-sites should look as if they belong to the same 'family', echoing the look and feel of the DCMS site, using the DCMS logo positioned left in conjunction with the DCMS colour palette throughout.

Websites should reflect only the DCMS brand and not have/become a brand in their own right unless express permission has been received from the e-communications manager.

Where co-branding is necessary the logo exclusion zone must be observed or a separate page for partners provided. The minimum size for the logo is 98 x 126 pixels. It should be always be surrounded by an area of clear space.

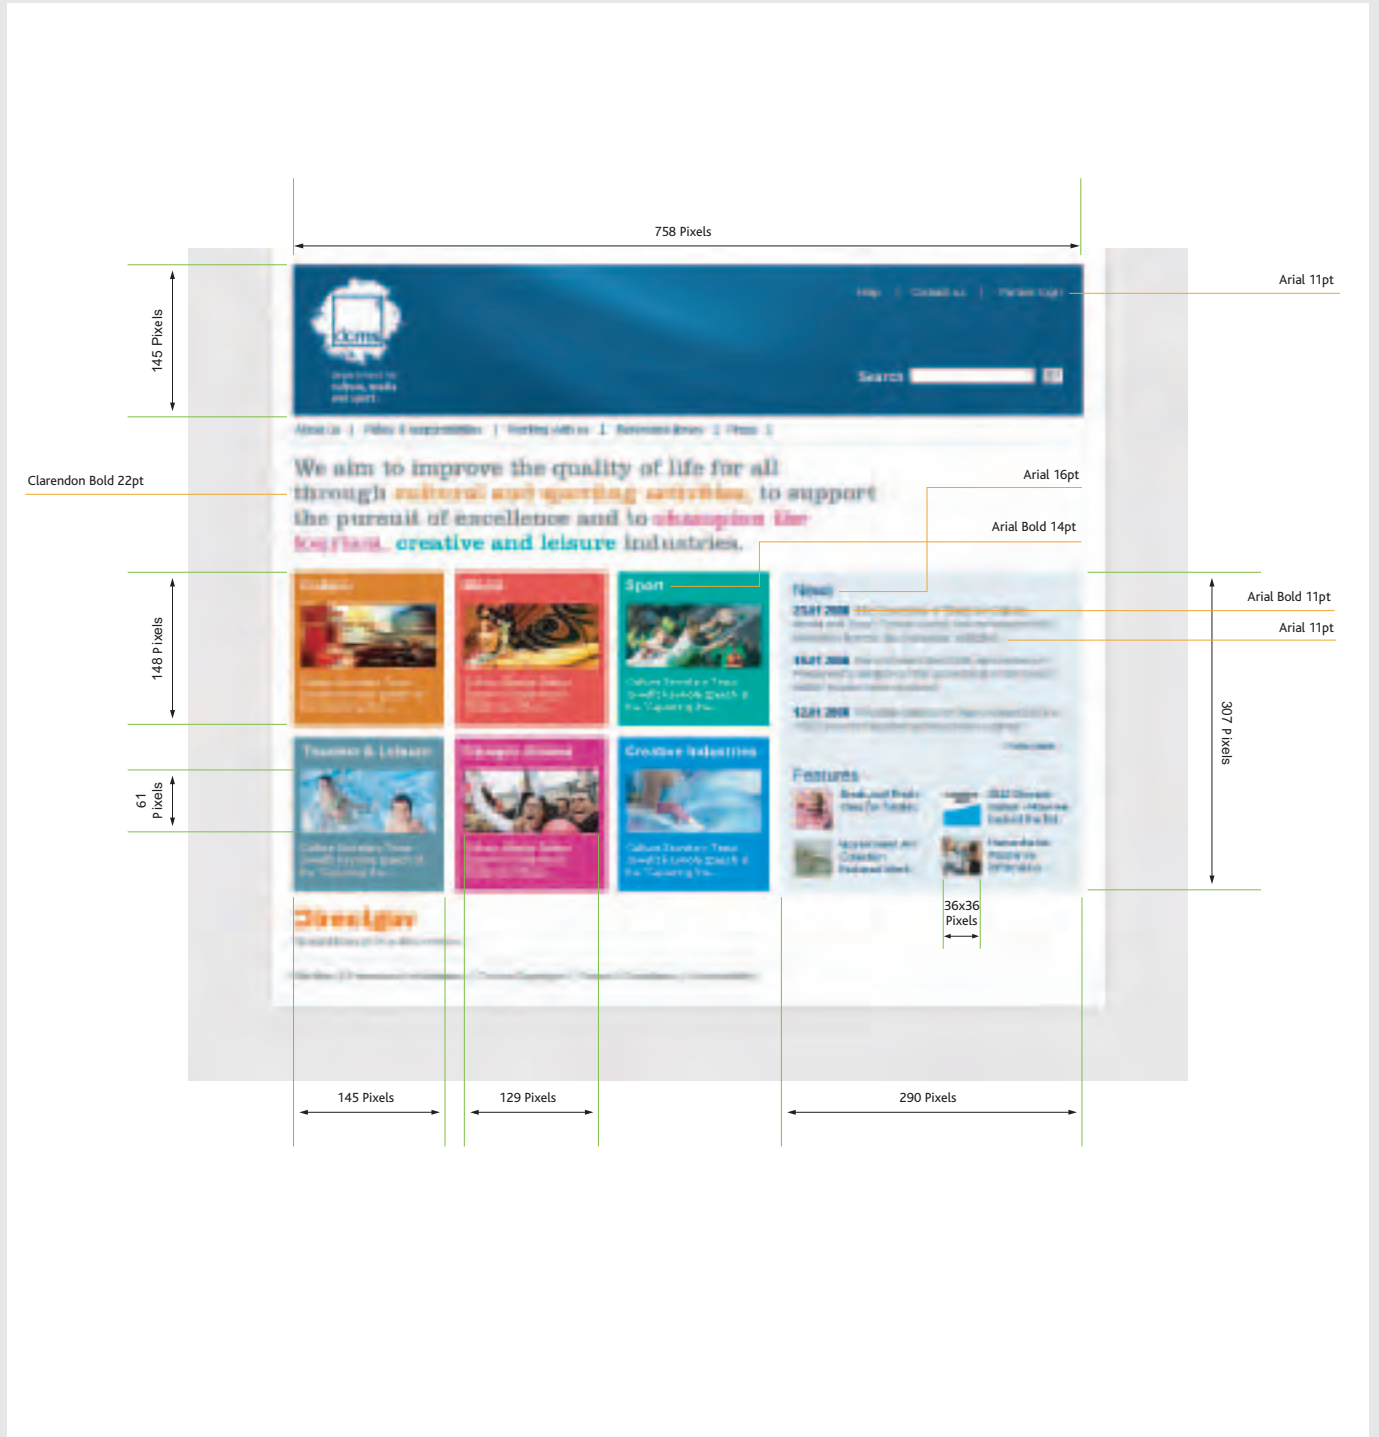

Bliss or Clarendon can be used selectively as a design feature but Arial is the Department's default web typeface. The type should be no less than 11pt for body copy.

Websites should be built to e-Government and W3C AA accessibility guideline standards.

recruitment adverts

two column

Recruitment adverts are designed to a set grid structure and are printed in a single colour. Since the requirements of individual advertisements differ it is not practical to establish detailed specifications. However, the examples on this and following page show the basic design principles, alignment and type specifications.

All the brand elements, positions and dimensions must be consistently applied to achieve clear and effective communications.

Attention to detail must be observed when typesetting adverts in order to produce well-balanced pages. It is also the editor's role to ensure the copy is written to fit.

Copy is set in upper and lowercase, ranged left and ragged right.

exhibitions

The DCMS brand must be consistently applied to all exhibition and conference items.

The logo should always appear in the top left-hand corner of the application (wherever possible) and reproduced from a master reference. Bliss is the primary font, Clarendon is the supporting font. The DCMS colour palette must be used.

The strapline box should also appear and must be reproduced from a master reference. It is designed to interact with the individual design of each application and create a visual balance with the logo.

It is important that the DCMS colours are matched accurately on all materials, finishes and surfaces, irrespective of the manufacturing process or printing technique. It must always be ensured that the printer achieves an accurate colour match.

merchandising

Certain events, launches and conferences will require the DCMS brand to appear on promotional items. From clothing to conference name badges, promotional merchandise to signage.

These are all high profile and important applications and the elements of the DCMS brand should be consistently applied.

The logo should always appear in the top left-hand corner of the application (wherever possible) and reproduced from a master reference. Bliss is the primary font, Clarendon is the supporting font. The DCMS colour palette must be used.

It is important that the DCMS colours are matched accurately on all materials, finishes and surfaces, irrespective of the manufacturing process or printing technique. It must always be ensured that the printer achieves an accurate colour match.

Materials and items that complement rather than conflict with the brand should be considered when sourcing promotional items. Contemporary, environmental, ethically sourced, good quality materials are recommended.
